

Council, Polonsky Rap Cable TV Firm

By WILL E. THOMAS

A chafed City Council in Daly City has resurrected for possible action next week a December, 1976 paper by City Atty. Albert Polonsky that claims "a sufficient case has been made" for revocation of the Vista Grande Cablevision, Inc., agreement of 1975.

Polonsky told the council at a study session Monday night that he was miffed over the firm's lack of response in the long-time issue.

"To hell with them!" Polonsky said tersely in urging the City Council to act on his document.

City Manager Dave Rowe also urged action on the matter, which will appear on the May 9 agenda.

Polonsky and Rowe both explained that they had expected to hear from Vista Grande's legal representative, Tom Renk, is late April, but hadn't.

However, Renk reportedly is heavily involved with a trial now and Michael J. Blumenfeld was sent to Monday's meeting to announce that Renk's "analysis" of Polonsky's hard-hitting Dec. 21, 1976 documents would be submitted soon.

Councilman McRobert Stewart, speaking of delays, said the company had been told many times "this will be the last time." But, he said, the delays continue. He also decried the lack of response from the attorney.

Stewart pointed out that the city had been working on the cablevision problems for some 3½ years and "we're very tired of waiting."

"We have had complaints; very serious complaints," attorney Blumenfeld was told. "Your boss had better get off the stick!"

Rowe said there had been a meeting with the company's attorneys. He said he found them difficult to work with.

Renk will submit the awaited response, Blumenfeld indicated, "with the urgency required," probably by next week's council meeting.

Among Polonsky's allegations were:

Failure to provide prompt and efficient repair service to subscribers, failure to produce good pictures and transmit signals of adequate strength, failure to properly and timely file certificates of insurance and bonds.

Failure to provide monthly records showing the amount, location and date of service calls received, the nature of the problem involved and the date when service was restored, and failure to maintain its wires, cables, fixtures and other equipment in a safe, suitable, substantial condition and in good order and repair.

In other study session business, the council agreed to three public hearings on May 9: At 7 p.m., an ordinance regulating water allocations; at 8 p.m., on declaring privately owned and maintained roads exist in Midway Village and declaring the city's intent to establish traffic regulations; and declaring nuisance, and authorizing removal of weeds, rubbish, refuse and dirt in certain areas of the city.

2 Dead, 1 Wounded In Shooting in DC

A Daly City man shot and killed one of his wife's sisters and wounded another before taking his own life after a daylong family argument Sunday.

Daly City police said the fatal end to the drama came shortly after 6:40 p.m. in front of the home of William and Joyce Kee, 196 St. Michael's Court, Daly City.

Dead are Kee, 54, and Jimmie Reed, 40, of Oakland. Wounded was Ethel McLeod, 42, also of Oakland.

Authorities in Daly City said the Kees had been arguing all day, apparently over Kee's desire to buy a new car. Mrs. Kee ultimately left in late afternoon. However, she returned with her two sisters a short time before the shooting, to pick up her clothes, a police spokesman said.

The police said Kee produced a 22-caliber "Saturday Night Special" when Mrs. Kee returned to the couple's home.

Police said they are not certain whether Kee confronted the women at the door or if his wife and her sisters were leaving when the shooting started outside.

Kee allegedly shot at his 33-year-old wife first, but missed. The women were about 10 feet away from him. Then he reportedly shot at Mrs. Kee's sister, Ethel McLeod, the bullet passing cleanly through her shoulder.

Kee allegedly next fired at the other sister, Jimmie

Reed, who was struck in the head and killed.

According to police, Kee then jumped into his car and left the scene. In the meantime, an unidentified passerby rushed the McLeod woman to Mary's Help Hospital, several blocks away.

Kee later returned to the scene, where an ambulance and police had already responded.

The police said Kee jumped out of the car, put the weapon to his head and shot and killed himself — after the gun had misfired four times.

Police said their units had been dispatched to the Kee residence earlier because of the argument.

Unincorporated Area Fireworks Ban

By unanimous vote the County Supervisors has instructed the district attorney to prepare an emergency ordinance banning the sale and use of fireworks in all unincorporated sections of the county.

District Atty. Keith Sorenson will present the ordinance to the board next Tuesday, when it is expected to be adopted.

The ordinance will go into effect that day.

The board action follows similar moves by some cities in the county. Other cities have failed to support a fireworks ban.

Representatives of the State Division of Forestry, the Palomar Park Volunteer Fire Department and other citizens told the board they supported the proposed ordinance.

Supervisor Edward Baccio said he agreed that a fireworks ban should be imposed this year because of the drought condition, but added he opposed a permanent prohibition.

He promised he would ask the board to reconsider the ordinance when normal rainfall returns to the area.

Citizens' Tax Group Being Formed in DC

A Daly City citizens group is being organized to lobby for significantly lower property tax rates in the wake of significantly higher reassessments.

Harold Calder, head of the steering committee of the group, said it is being organized through neighborhood association representatives, who "fear that spending will be increased," because property has been reappraised at higher levels.

The taxpayers committee will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Daly City Civic Center.

Calder said the committee will concentrate its first efforts toward lowering the tax rate in the upcoming proposed Daly City budget.

Expenditures of government at a local level are just as loose as those at higher level," Calder noted.

He said the committee also will look at county expenditures and the Jefferson Union High School District budget, both of which take a tax bite from area citizens.

A preliminary meeting recently indicated interest in an organized effort. Calder noted. He said the local organization would be similar to the San Mateo County Taxpayers Association.

The committee's first major task will be to monitor the five budget study sessions set up by the Daly City Council.

Mayor Albert Teglia has announced that budget sessions have been scheduled for May 19, 25, 26, 31 and June 1. All sessions will be held at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers.

According to City Manager David Rowe, the budget study sessions in recent years have not generated much citizen participation.

But because of the new property reassessments he expects considerable attendance this year.

Rowe said citizens may obtain advance copies of the proposed budget a couple of days before the first session. The budget is being completed by city officials.

Gloomy Outlook Seen By Jeff High Officials

The economic outlook for the Jefferson Union High School District is very gloomy, Dr. Robert Watt, assistant superintendent in charge of business, warned the trustees Monday during a special study session.

"The district is $307,000 in the hole," explained Watt, adding, "This budget is serious. This budget is a very tight budget."

The $16,033,518 estimated 1977-78 budget and estimated $2.69 per $100 of assessed valuation tax rate does not provide for any projected salary increases, only the regular step increases, said Watt.

"Unless some changes occur before June, we are going to have to look at some places to cut, and we are already looking at a bare bones budget," he warned.

He said that all known increases and fixed costs are included in this budget estimate — a fact Marcy Ballard, president of the American Federation of Teachers, Local No. 1481, disputes.

She stated that it is the AFT's position that those who perform services for the students in the classroom — namely teachers — are part of a fixed cost of running the school.

"I think we are going to have to show the people in the Jefferson Union High School District that we are going to have to accept cuts," said Trustee Jane Powell.

District Supt. Floyd Gonella reminded the audience that the increased assessments everyone is talking about in no way affect the schools. "The

Broadmoor, Colma Talks To Continue

By NANCY STANCILL
Colma's City Council Monday night voted 3-1 to continue negotiations with the Broadmoor Police Commission on a police services contract proposal.

Colma's councilmen agreed, however, that they would not take the Broadmoor division into the city's police department if a contract costs the city additional money.

Voting against continuing negotiations with Broadmoor was Councilman Ray Ottoboni, who expressed the opinion that taking on the Broadmoor division would generate a lot of headaches.

Mayor Eugene Daneluz and Councilmen Rich Valera and Fred Garbini voted to continue negotiations. Mayor pro tem Paul Howe abstained.

Prior to the Monday meeting, representatives of Broadmoor had met with Valera and Howe and Colma's Police Chief Jim Dorris to discuss obtaining permanent police service for the unincorporated area.

During that meeting two weeks ago, Dorris estimated that the first year of police service would cost Broadmoor about $166,174 at current budgeting levels. If Colma personnel are given raises in July, costs would increase.

Broadmoor's Police Commission also is negotiating with Daly City, and last week received a 1977-78 contract offer of $206,700 from City Manager Dave Rowe. The contract is proposed for a seven-to-10 year agreement.

The Broadmoor division has been administered by the Daly City Police Department since Jan. 1 through a temporary contract that will continue through June 30. The arrangement was made after the Broadmoor department lost its liability insurance.

Police Commissioner Dean Davenport explained to the Colma City Council that the commission currently has three options — to cast its lot with Colma or Daly City or to purchase liability insurance and return to independent status.

The councilmen refused to commit themselves to agreement on a three-page letter of suggestions by Dorris. The police chief's letter outlined the following provisions for acceptance of the Broadmoor division:

- Employment for all personnel, providing they pass a standard medical examination given by the city doctor.

- One man in the (Broadmoor) district at all times with adequate supervision and backup.

- No guarantee that wages will not be adjusted either up or down.

- No guarantee of title or position.

- Purchase of Broadmoor equipment after a mutually agreed upon assessor places a value on the equipment... agreeable to both Colma and Broadmoor.

- Contractual protection for both parties in areas of tax and cost increase and a provision for six-months notice to Colma should Broadmoor

Transfer Site Action Delayed

Daly City will have another chance to convince the Central Coastal Zone Regional Commission that construction of a solid waste transfer station at the Mussel Rock dumpsite should be approved.

The commission, meeting in Santa Cruz, earlier Monday delayed its action on the matter until May 16, when the Daly City and Pacifica delegation is to appear again.

In the meantime, according to Daly City Mayor Al Teglia, the commission's staff is to prepare a second report, which will include findings to support the project.

Monday's staff report did not deal with anything but negative aspects of the Daly City proposal, Teglia said.

The application has been pending before the commission since March.

Members of a joint Daly City-Pacifica committee on garbage disposal had met Friday to map their plan of action for the Monday session.

The executive director's report recommended that the other application for the 143-acre Mussel Rock site, a 50-acre Coastside park, be approved by the commission.

The transfer station, to be used for switching garbage from small to large trucks for hauling to the county's Ox Mountain dump site at Half Moon Bay, would require two acres of the site.

The recommendation cited the Coastal Act, which states that coastal dependent developments have priority over others.

"Since the proposed transfer station is not 'coastal dependent development,' it appears that the transfer station would be in conflict with the Coastal Act and would preclude or interfere with development at the site that is coastal dependent," the recommendation said.

The Mussel Rock site for years has been used for garbage dumping, but the California Regional Water Quality Control Board has ordered that dumping be stopped by Aug. 15 because of fear of landslides and ocean pollution.

Murder Charge

A 31-year-old Daly City man was arrested today on a murder charge involving the death of a 28-year-old San Francisco woman last Feb. 20.

A Daly City police spokesman announced the arrest shortly before 11 a.m. of McSamuel Carr of 690 Villa St., Apt. 4, Daly City.

Carr is being held in connection with the death of Sandra Anderson of 2141 Geary St., San Francisco.

Police said they acted on a warrant issued by Northern District Municipal Court Judge Jose deLarios.

The Anderson woman was found dead at 3:30 a.m., Feb. 20, in the Carr apartment, police said.

A coroner's toxicology report has indicated death by an overdose of cocaine, police said.

Police alleged that Carr supplied the cocaine to the woman.

The investigation and subsequent arrest were handled by Det. Jim Mendara and Det. Tom Martin.

'Snob Appeal' Brisk Sale of Wine Cellars

By JANET PARKER
A San Francisco man wanted one for a $14,000 bottle of wine. Some persons in business buy them to add a touch of elegance to their office or to give as gifts to their best clients.

One doctor wanted one in which to store his wife's fine furs.

It was that kind of interest that encouraged Ron Brown to give up 17 years as a Bank of America assistant vice president and become an entrepreneur of home and office wine cellars in San Bruno.

He's finding that money is no object when wine connoisseurs are determined to age a prized bottle of Cabernet Sauvignon to perfection. He's getting inquiries from all over the country and from places as far away as Ghana and Turkey about his unique "Wine Time Machines," which sell for a mere $1,395.

"It's a prestige thing," Brown admits. "It's snob appeal."

But, apparently, few wine drinkers are embarrassed about such extravagance. The corporation, Vintage House, sold 48 of the first 50 wine cabinets before they were even assembled. In less than a year, Brown — the president of the corporation — has sold 160 of the teakwood cellars.

Many wine collectors, Brown said, simply are seeking status. But many others, he said, do appreciate a good bottle of wine and are concerned about losing the value of that precious wine, because of fluctuating temperatures.

Some customers have two cellars to rest side-by-side in their home — one for European wines and one for California brands.

Brown, a Foster City resident, follows the sun. Where the weather is beginning to turn hot, he places an ad in the regional gourmet publications. Then, the cards and letters start pouring in to his Montgomery Avenue office.

Brown was an average wine enthusiast when he enrolled in a wine tasting course, along with his brother-in-law, Gary Aske, at the College of San Mateo six years ago.

It suddenly became important to the twosome to age wine properly.

Some unknowing wine drinkers, he said, buy an expensive bottle of wine, set it on a rack in their kitchen for months or even years, and open it later to find it had turned to vinegar.

"I lost some nice wines that were just sitting on the rack," Brown recalled.

"We said, 'By golly, we want a wine cellar to store our good wines. But the more we asked about it, the less we found out,'" he said.

Their problem was to come up with an adequate and constant cooling system to keep wine from spoiling.

They learned that many of the common myths about wine storage simply are not true. Wines, they determined, do not have to be stored underground.

In fact, one of the best wine cellars in the world, he said, is 52 stories up in the air, in the Carnelian Room of the Bank of America building in San Francisco.

"Anyplace, anywhere you want to store wine can be a wine cellar," he said. However, an uncooled corner of a garage or basement won't do. The temperature can fluctuate just enough over a short period of time to destroy the taste.

After two years of market research and several trips to the Orient in search of suitable cabinet siding, they put their product up for sale.

"I knew it was crazy to walk away from a 17-year job but sometimes you have to do crazy things," Brown said.

His idea apparently wasn't so crazy. In only five months, their records were showing a profit.

He explained that 99 per cent of his sales are to individuals, although he has received 200 inquiries from builders who are eyeing the cellars to install in new housing.

Letters and orders — many containing a $1,395 check — arrive daily. Only two people who read the ad in various magazines called to check the validity of the company before committing themselves to a purchase.

FINE WINES GET FINER

Fine wines get even finer as they age in his "Wine Time Machines," according to Ron Brown of Foster City who sold 160 of the teakwood cellars in less than a year.

increase will help the cities and the counties but not the schools," said Gonella.

Watt told the trustees, "There is no way I can control costs such as insurance rate increases. At best I can see what other carriers offer, keeping in mind we are under contract to maintain the present level of benefits."

"Four schools — Westmoor, Oceana, Terra Nova and Jefferson — need new roofs," said Watt. He estimated a roof for Westmoor alone would cost $29,000. A patch job would cost about $17,000.

"Terra Nova's outdoor swimming pool needs resurfacing," added Watt. He said if it were not for the drought, the district would have the pool drained and resurfaced with fiberglass.

The staff's budget recommendations to the trustees include:

- A suggestion to review the staff ratios and current educational programs.

- A contingency fund of at least $200,000 should be maintained and consideration given to increase it to $250,000.

- All federally funded projects should be reviewed thoroughly by the board.

"The budget estimate includes all existing programs," said Watt, "while allowing for a staff decrease of approximately seven and an enrollment drop of 150."

The trustees responded to this tight budget with several suggestions on places to start looking for cuts and a request that staff research these alternatives.

Trustee James Roman suggested the district office be moved to cheaper quarters and the telephone system (district telephone bills are estimated at $54,750 for 1977-78) be reviewed for ways to cut costs.

"The suggestion the district office be moved to cheaper quarters comes up every year," said Gonella. "I have toured possible elementary school sites, such as Vallejo, and found a basic telephone move alone would cost $25,000 without any remodeling fees."

"We see enrollment dropping by 8,000 in five years," added Gonella, "and therefore see the possibility of moving into one of our own schools. But right now any move would be too expensive."

Roman also requested figures on the number of department heads at each school after he discovered Serramonte High, which has a lower enrollment than other schools, has a higher number of department heads.

Trustee John Sloan suggested increasing the distance a student must live from school before being eligible for transportation from two to three miles. His eventual goal, he said, would be to phase out all transportation.

The budget includes a $47,000 figure to replace some of the district buses that are at least 20 years old.

Jane Powell, chairwoman, said boundary lines could be redrawn to minimize the number of students that would have to be transported.

She also suggested that the position of school nurse be reviewed, saying that clerical persons could handle the paperwork and testing could be handled on a contract basis.

Combining some high cost-low enrollment courses at one school was suggested by Trustee Ruth Boninot.

Gonella told the trustee the whole area of psychological services is now under study and some suggestions will be made pending the results of that study.

Watt directed the board's attention to major areas of increases:

- The State Teachers Retirement System contribution increased from 6.4 to 7.2 per cent.

- The Public Employees Retirement System contribution increased from 8.6 to 8.71 per cent.

- The dental plan fee jumped from $21.84 to $23.07.

- Blue Cross went from $72.79 to $90.95.

- The state legislature is requiring districts to carry unemployment insurance. This will cost JUHSD $51,000.

decide to resume independent police service.

Council members expressed most opposition to their police chief's recommendation that two additional sergeant positions would have to be created if the Colma department takes on seven new personnel.

Dorris' letter pointed out that "this would mean that the city would have to hire two additional men" to replace the officers named sergeants.

"Two additional men to take over this district? I can't see it if it is going to be an expense to us," said Howe.

Garbini said, he, too, opposes hiring two additional men.

Councilman also questioned Dorris' estimate of $168,700 as the cost of Broadmoor service.

"I won't commit myself to $168,000. No way," commented Daneluz.

Two Broadmoor residents appealed to the Colma council to act to prevent Broadmoor from having to seek a contract with Daly City.

"I can see advantages to Colma in a contract with Broadmoor," said Mike Handlin. "Daly City is already talking about eating up Colma."

Ralph Damon said he has polled more than 100 district voters and reported that "the great majority would prefer a contract with Colma, rather than Daly City."

The council agreed to consider more specific contract proposals at a special meeting to be held May 16 at 7:30 p.m.

The council also instructed Davenport to report whether the Broadmoor Police Commission is still interested in a Colma contract following a May 10 commission meeting.

"I'm not going to be put under the gun to decide tonight," Daneluz concluded.

Group Vows to Sink SSF Marina Project

By JANET PARKER
While San Mateo County Harbor District officials urged South San Francisco to launch its $8.4 million marina expansion plan, a taxpayers' organization vowed Wednesday night to sink the project — even if it takes a ballot referendum or legal action.

Members of the United Taxpayers Association (UTA) have already scheduled a meeting Monday night to lay the groundwork for a referendum that would allow South San Francisco voters to decide if Oyster Point Marina should be developed.

At the end of a four-hour study session, the South San Francisco City Council decided only to hold off its final decision until May 4.

There were indications that Councilmen William Borba and Leo Padreddi want the biggest financial venture the city has ever entered to be left up to the voters.

Padreddi's proposal was to proceed with the project plans until the election can be held in March.

Then, he said, if voters turned it down, the marina could be transferred to the San Mateo County Harbor District or an interested private party.

Harbor district officials said they are ready to help South San Francisco develop its marina "any way we can."

South San Francisco has been considering marina expansion for more than four years.

The proposed expansion will increase the number of berths from 280 to 570. It will include construction of a fishing pier, boat launching ramps, restaurants, shops and marina facilities.

The council has been cautious about the project, authorizing its staff only to seek permits for construction.

A 1973 feasibility report stated that the project will be fiscally sound. However, the council had asked its new city manager, Walter Birkelo, to prepare his own updated financial feasibility report in light of criticism by the UTA and other residents.

Birkelo unveiled the report Wednesday night and recommended that the council proceed.

He pointed out, however, that the cost has escalated from $6.8 million to $8.4 million and that it "could conceivably go to $10 million."

"My conclusion is that the project is financially feasible to a substantial degree," Birkelo said. Funding is expected to be obtained from a $6 million Department of Navigation and Ocean Development loan and other state and federal assistance.

The loans, Birkelo explained, will be repaid using expected revenue from berth rentals, dry storage fees, and sales taxes from the various marina shops.

Part of the project is $1 million worth of improvements to satisfy a court order by the State Water Quality Control Board. Even if the marina is not expanded, the WQCB is demanding the leachate control measures. (Leachate is materials from the shoreline oozing into the Bay.)

City Atty. John Noonan warned the council that the WQCB is not willing to wait for any length of time. Birkelo said if the leachate control is not completed as part of a total marina project, the council will have to turn to the voters for a tax override of as much as 40 cents on the $1 tax rate.

In his report, Birkelo said that if the council decides at this point to cancel the expansion plan entirely, it will still cost the city $78,000 to pay off loans to date, $1 million for

County Decides Funding

County supervisors recently earmarked $850,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for community-based organizations to deliver social programs next fiscal year.

The allocation, part of the $3.7 million in federal funds expected to be received, is almost $100,000 more than was appropriated to social service organizations last year.

County Manager David L. Nichols recommended that the board approve the same allocation as last year in light of the county's current fiscal constraints.

But the board by a 3-1 vote, chose to follow recommendations made by the Human Services Coordinating Council, a partnership of local government officials, private charities and philanthropic organizations. The partnership is attempting to coordinate social programs in the county with available financial resources.

The board also approved a concept of disbursement of the revenue sharing funds devised by the Human Services Coordinating Council.

The council had suggested that the available funds be divided to fund core and special services.

Core services would include information and referral programs, non-specialized employment services, nonhealth and emergency assistance and counseling services.

These would serve as entry programs from which the needy would be referred to such special programs as child care, youth, legal, ethnic and senior services.

The board will hold a public hearing in the next several months to listen to appeals of community-based organizations for a share of the funds.

In other action April 26, the board directed Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson to amend his preliminary department budget to exclude some $30,000 to be collected from school districts next fiscal year for legal services.

Last year, the board suggested the District Attorney's Office and other departments increase their revenue through user charges. Sorenson responded by asking all county school districts to pay various amounts for time his deputies spent on district legal business.

Sorenson's request angered several district officials, some of whom refused to pay.

leachate control and $1.2 million for repairs to the existing deteriorating marina.

Marina expansion supporters and opponents paraded before the council while it tried to decide what to do with Oyster Point.

UTA leader John Falsarella, one of the most outspoken expansion opponents, said predictions of the project's fiscal security are "inaccurate, incomplete and misleading."

"The marina project is a luxury project which benefits about 54 boat owners," Falsarella said. Only 19 percent of the boats docked there, he said, belong to South San Franciscans.

He questioned the certainty that the city will be able to repay the marina loans and that the project won't be a fiscal disaster for the city.

The UTA, he said, believes the money could be better used on such things as a senior citizen center, restoration of the meeting room in City Hall, street repairs and a community center for Westborough.

Falsarella said UTA has only one choice — "that is a referendum."

A UTA member who has compiled reams of material about the project, Jim Keegan, questioned how the city will be able to afford the marina upkeep with its existing parks and recreation staff.

Both UTA members argued that the marina will benefit an exclusive few at the expense of many.

Marina supporters, particularly boat owners, were angered by the statements. "I'm disgusted," said boat owner Rene Duzac. He said that the original feasibility reports were completed by experts; not by a "businessman and a school teacher," referring to Keegan and Falsarella.

Duzac pointed out that the people who use the marina and pay the fees and taxes are the ones who will be repaying the marina loans.

"South San Francisco has been between the airport and San Francisco for years. We keep saying 'No,' he said. "What the hell are you waiting for?"

The audience applauded loudly.

Resident Ed Rickenbacher said the project is the "finest thing that's ever happened to South San Francisco." He said it will open a myriad of businesses on Airport Boulevard.

The council has at various times considered financial assistance from the county Harbor District. The city rejected a $250,000 loan for boat launching ramps because it was concerned about the strings attached.

Harbor district Board President Charles Boerio told the council the district has been trying to help South San Francisco all along, and still is trying.

"We're not out to take over Oyster Point and steal it away from the people of South San Francisco," Boerio said. "It seems to be there's a lack of communication somewhere."

Blood Pressure Test Offered for Free

San Mateo County health facilities have joined forces to organize free county-wide blood pressure screenings throughout the community in commemoration of National Hospital Week, May 9-15.

"Hypertension, or high blood pressure, as it is commonly called, is a serious threat to the health of this community," warned the president of the San Mateo County Medical Society, Oscar Hills, M.D. "According to statistics, one in every seven adults has high blood pressure and half of them don't know it," he reports.

Undetected, the disease can lead to life-threatening illnesses such as stroke, heart attack, blindness, and kidney disease, and it is the major cause of death among black Americans.

Saturday, May 14, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. is the primary screening date. Volunteer medical teams consisting of physicians, nurses and pharmacists will perform the test and offer counseling at each site.

In addition to the screenings, San Mateo County will provide informational literature and paramedic demonstrations of the new Emergency Medical Services, (E.M.S.). Medevac Ambulances, employed by E.M.S., will operate from each of the screening sites, answering any emergencies which may arise.

Screening sites include Tanforan Shopping Center, San Bruno; Serramonte Shopping Center, Daly City; and Westlake Shopping Center, Daly City.

For more information, call the Blood Pressure Hotline at 366-3640.

Each class consists of 20 children. The staff is dedicated to enriching each parent's and child's life by numerous educational and multi-cultural activities.

The Head Start program is county wide, with centers located in Daly City, San Bruno, Pacifica, San Mateo, Redwood City and East Palo Alto. Parents are encouraged to be in the classroom at intervals and to volunteer in the program.

Prize of $300 Offered in Contest

Actors' Theater for Children, a Santa Rosa-based community theater company that performs and tours for the young audience in Northern California, is sponsoring a statewide playwriting competition for children's theater.

This first competition is limited to play versions of L. Frank Baum's 13 Oz stories other than "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," and is open to any California resident.

First prize is $300 plus premier production and tour in lieu of royalties; second prize is $150 and third is $75.

Entry deadline is June 30. Award announcement will be made Oct. 1 and premier production and tour is scheduled for spring 1978.

For entry forms and rules of entry write Actors' Theater for Children, 3625 Yale Drive, Santa Rosa 95405.

According to Walter McGauley, president of ATFC, despite the long popularity and growing critical interest in the Oz books, these works have been largely neglected by children's theater dramatists. "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Land of Oz" have been in public domain for some time and the remaining 12 Oz stories became public domain Dec. 31, 1976. The series has recently been reissued in paperback by two publishing companies and are in local libraries making them easily accessible to the prospective playwright.

"I am the grass.
Let me work."
—Carl Sandburg

A prominent turfgrass research man with decades of experience has stated that lawns are watered improperly so frequently that he has ceased to recommend watering at all. Backing him up, the director of the Law Institute, Robert W. Schery writes, it is a "fact that well established turf grass is able to live out desiccation during drought, though it may turn totally brown. When more favorable weather comes it quickly perks up into an expanse of green."

Since drought has seized California, it is important for homeowners to consult a good manual of lawn care. Among the best are the books of Robert W. Schery: "The Lawn Book" (Macmillan, $7.95), "Lawn Keeping," (Prentice Hall, $12.95; paperback $5.95, and "A Perfect Lawn" (Macmillan, 1973, $8.95).

Schery's concern is the suburbanite. Hence, he presents the basic rules for planting and maintaining a lawn. His books give both general and regional information and clarify common fallacies about lawns.

In "The Lawn Book," Schery gives planting timetables, evaluates grasses, defines soils, recommends kinds (not brands) of mowers and speaks of weed control, of diseases and insects.

IN A CHAPTER on watering lawns, Schery tells how to apply water and warns that quick summer sprinkling is an aid to crabgrass while benefiting the deep-rooted lawn species very little.

Schery writes that applying water is only half the job. "The other half is getting it into the root zone." Here he writes of the effect of sprinklers and of aerificators. Sandy soils, he writes, "merit sprinklers that release a large volume of water quickly. This is because they are quite receptive to soak. They become saturated quickly, the pore spaces filled. Further watering is wasteful, since it simply drains away."

At the end of his chapter on watering, Schery dispels some ideas that are more "fancy than fact." Among them are, "don't water in the sun," "water at night," "watering in one spot helps all the grass," and "tap water is bad for the grass." Such beliefs have no substance.

ONE OF THE MOST widely used books on lawn care is Sunset's "Lawns and Ground Covers."

In a section on efficient lawn watering, the book contains this statement that drought-ridden Californians should heed. "If you have sandy soil, you can pour on the water and it will disappear immediately."

The authors of the Sunset book write that systematic watering is more important than pouring on large quantities of water. They advise the people who care for their lawns to learn the depth of their soil and water accordingly. They warn that too much watering can create shallow roots, build up salinity due to leaching, encourage shallow-rooted weeds, particularly crabgrass, produce an environment favorable to disease, cause compaction and cause greater water loss due to evaporation.

The editors write that stretching the interval between watering to as many days as your lawn can take it has much in its favor.

San Brunan Wins Emmy; 'Community Involvement'

A San Bruno man has received an Emmy award from the National Academy of Arts and Sciences for "community involvement" in television production.

Dick Fernandez, an engineer for KGO television, received the award at the San Francisco dinner on April 23 at the St. Francis Hotel.

Fernandez received the honor as one of the founders of the Broadcast Industry Community Service Project — a volunteer organization of Bay Area broadcast employees.

The organization, according to a KGO spokesman, was formed 10 years ago to provide television entertainment for veterans in military hospitals.

However, it has expanded its coverage to include other aspects of community involvement.

Last year, the organization was responsible for cable television coverage of the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon at Tanforan Shopping Center shown in South San Francisco, Pacifica, San Bruno, Redwood City, Belmont and San Carlos. The telethon raised more than $13,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy fund.

The spokesman said the Volunteers — who are floor directors, cameramen, engineers and directors represent all the major television stations in the Bay Area.

They also produced 20 half-hour films of the Monterey Jazz Festival for showing in hospitals around the world, and have filmed Fernandez has been employed with KGO since 1951.

Burglars Loot Airline Safe

Burglars who forced open a metal box used as a safe at the operations office of National Airlines in the Central Terminal at San Francisco International Airport took seven envelopes containing $500 in cash Thursday morning, Sheriff's Deputy Anthony C. Guillory reports.

John J. Arsenault, 42, of Foster City, the airline agent, discovered the burglary when he arrived for work at 5 a.m. He found the office lights on and the safe pried open. He said the money was receipts from on-flight liquor sales turned in by flight attendants Wednesday night.

How Much County Control?

Supervisors Delay Decision on EOC

By RICK SULLIVAN

Economic Opportunity Commission Director Edward Becks successfully urged the Board of Supervisors this week to "stay the execution" of his department by delaying action on a proposed major reorganization.

The articulate, veteran director of EOC, a quasi-independent agency which administers educational, nutritional and training programs for the needy, convinced the board that more discussion of reorganization was necessary.

The board directed George Riley, director of Community Services, to meet with Becks in an attempt to work out a reorganization over the next 60 days that is acceptable to both of them.

Last month Riley proposed to the board that it exercise greater control over the commission's fiscal matters and authorize him to appoint the EOC director.

The proposal is to a large degree a managerial response to a budget overexpenditure last year of $116,177 by the EOC.

In a report to the board, Riley noted that although the EOC has been granted some independent status, according to the district attorney's office it is a county operation.

Thus, Riley theorized that the county is now liable to cover the overexpenditure incurred last year.

Riley stated in his report that the board's delegation of such authority over grants, budgets and appointments to the EOC has effectively removed the commission's activities from the moral review which applies to every other county department.

The week the County Grand Jury concurred with Riley's reorganization recommendation. The grand jury action came after study of the EOC operation and discussions with commissioners and staff members.

Riley recently was named director of Community Services. His department oversees the operation of such sub-departments as libraries, weights and measures, veterans services, the Human Relations Commission and the EOC.

Becks told the board Thursday that the commission opposes Riley's reorganization plan. He said the commission wants to be completely independent from the county.

Only with independence, Becks maintained, can the commission effectively serve the low income residents of the county. Becks claimed that to absorb the commission and its programs in a "super bureaucracy" such as the county would undermine the commission's response to the needs of the indigent.

A polemic discussion developed between Becks and Supervisor Edward Baccicco. They discoursed at length on historical perspectives and government philosophies. But the supervisor maintained that if EOC was to be granted independent status it should be governed by elected officials, who would be charged with disbursement of funds.

Becks replied that an independent commission comprised of representatives of the needy could operate judiciously under certain guidelines.

Petition Supports Castelan

Some 128 participants in the Daly City Senior Citizens Nutrition Program have signed a petition calling for the reinstatement of Julius Castelan as program manager.

Castelan was dismissed as manager of the Lincoln Park Clubhouse program last week, following an incident almost two weeks ago concerning an alleged knife threat.

Ocie Sherrall, the program's cook, told police that Castelan threatened her with a knife during an argument. She has since reportedly resigned from the program.

According to Daly City Police, the woman has not yet signed a formal complaint which might result in misdemeanor charges against Castelan.

Castelan has appealed the dismissal by Kathleen Haney, county director of senior citizen nutrition projects.

The 79-year-old senior citizen advocate has taken the appeal to Edward Becks, executive director of the San Mateo County Economic Opportunity Commission.

Becks said he has talked to Castelan several times this week and is recommending that the commission hear the appeal.

If Castelan agrees to the procedure, the commission will take up the matter within a few weeks.

Castelan had no comment on the matter.

He said the petition, which calls for his reinstatement, was started without his knowledge.

The petition, directed to Becks, mentions Castelan's help in all senior citizens' concerns and asks that Becks "treat Mr. Castelan fair."

Man's Body Found

The badly decomposed body of a man found floating off the San Mateo County Coastside by a Coast Guard crew may be that of a 24-year-old man who disappeared when his van plunged off Devil's Slide April 13, the Sheriff's Office reported today.

The body was noticed floating in shallow shoals some 100 yards south of the Montara Light Station about 2 p.m. Wednesday by Peter Connelly, who is stationed at the Coast Guard station on Yerba Buena Island.

The body had no clothing, according to Coroner's Investigator James Wade. He estimated it had been in the water for a long time.

Sheriff's deputies reported the body might be that of Scott Ladue, a resident of the Skywood Ranch on Skyline Boulevard, who disappeared when his van plunged off Devil's Slide.

Two friends who had been driving in front of him at about 1:15 a.m. reported to the California Highway Patrol they heard a noise and looked back to see Ladue's 1971 van soar off into the darkness.

The Sheriff's Office and the Coast Guard searched the area for about nine hours the following day without finding a trace of Ladue.

Officer Kevin Kelly said the roof of Ladue's van truck popped off when it landed on rocks at the base of Devil's Slide, and that he may have been swept to sea.

Northgate Ex-Owner Injured

An owner of the former Daly City-based Northgate Transit Co. underwent brain surgery this week following an accident at a San Francisco facility of the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Charles Lucas, now employed with SamTrans, was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City.

He was admitted to the hospital Sunday following a reported fall at the Irwin facility after he had given blood.

Lucas suffered three smashed ribs, a jaw and eye socket injury and lost some teeth in the fall.

Lucas lives in San Francisco. His wife could not be reached for a report of the incident.

Irwin officials refused to comment on the incident, acknowledging only that Irwin had upon occasion given blood at the center.

Butterfield May Not Watch Nixon

Alexander Butterfield, the man who revealed the existence of President Nixon's secret taping system, says he will watch David Frost's television interview with the former president only "if I'm home that evening."

Butterfield, since mid-January executive vice president of International Air Service Co. Ltd., in Burlingame, said Friday he feels "quite certain that nothing profound or new will be said" during the Wednesday night program.

"I'm just like any other citizen," he said. "If I happened not to be working or had any other engagement, I would watch it. I would be interested."

Butterfield, who was an official in the Nixon administration, said he thinks it's unfortunate that Nixon's first interview since leaving office will be conducted by a British talk show host.

"No one really knows except us Americans what Watergate is," he said. "Watergate was massive abuses of power by the executive. Most foreigners don't understand how much stock people of this country put into principle and responsibility and truth and that sort of thing."

Author Explains His Belief in Life After Death

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Even if you find it difficult to believe the theory that consciousness continues after physical death, it's hard not to admire Raymond A. Moody Jr. for trying.

Several hundred persons crowded into Skyline College's main theater recently to hear the professor of philosophy and psychiatric resident at the University of Virginia Hospital discuss his book, "Life After Life."

The book sums up hundreds of interviews that Moody conducted with people who came close to death and others who were pronounced clinically dead, but were revived. All reported a similar and astounding experience.

Moody said he conducted interviews over a period of 12 years and the project became time consuming about six years ago. He is good friends, he said, with Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, who studied the same subject independently for many years before their paths crossed in 1975.

"I'm aware of the possibilities of sensationalizing this. I realize that what I have done is not systematic or scientific study," said Moody in a soft voice with a southern accent. "I, myself, have never had a near-death experience," he added.

From the way he twisted his hands and hunched his shoulders, it was clear the professor was ill at ease before the large group.

"I'm not trying to convince anyone that there is life after death," Moody said, interjecting similar qualifications throughout his talk.

He stressed 15 common elements that cropped up again and again in his interviews with people who had come close to death.

"The experiences are remarkably similar, regardless of age, whether male or female, and regardless of the person's particular religious background," he said.

Very early in death, Moody said, the subjects said they heard a buzzing, clicking or ringing sound like water rushing through a gorge that was accompanied by the feeling of being drawn through a long, dark tunnel.

At the end of the tunnel, people reported that they saw their own physical bodies from outside themselves. If they were in the hospital, they usually felt they were floating close to the ceiling, looking down on their bodies as doctors worked to revive them.

In every case, the person's reaction was, "I can't believe this is happening to me," Moody said.

"The experience was like being behind a one-way mirror."

His subjects said they felt their personalities had carried over, but not their form.

"It was not as if they heard voices, but they could understand what people were saying before they opened their mouths. They couldn't communicate to these people, though."

"When they tried to touch the people, they went right through them. When they tried to walk to other parts of the hospital, they went right through walls and doors," Moody reported.

Another common experience, he said, was for a friend or relative who had died before to reappear, as if to help them through the transition.

Some people were called back to life at this stage, he said, but others who went farther had the most unique experience of all.

"I can't remember a single person who didn't say that this experience was indescribable. They all said the words they were using were only metaphors for the experience," Moody commented.

The next stage was "a panoramic view of every single thing they had ever done in their lives." It was not a linear experience, but rather as if "every single thing were there around them in full color, 3-D, in a panorama and viewed as if by a third person."

"Not only all their actions, but also all of their thoughts and the effects and consequences that their actions had had on other people were experienced," he added.

Moody brought down the house when he shyly remarked, "I'm not looking forward to going through that at all."

During the panorama stage, Moody's subjects reported seeing a "being" of light.

"Christians identified this as Christ, and Jews as God," said Moody. He explained that his subjects were all from Western civilization and that he had not done a cross-cultural study.

People said they felt this "being" of light asked them a question. "Out of all my subjects, six people have come up with exactly the same formula for describing it: 'What have you done with your life that you want to show me?'" Moody said.

Although those interviewed said they believed the question was asked in a loving and accepting way, Moody commented, "I've never talked with anyone who's had a hellish experience — anyone who felt he'd gone to hell. If I had had hellish experience, I would not be as likely to talk about it," he reflected. The audience laughed.

Early in the experience, Moody said, people desperately wanted to return — but, in later stage, people were reluctant to come back. Those who did felt an obligation, such as a mother who had children needing her.

The experience taught people that loving other people is the most important thing and that dying is not a frightening experience, Moody reported. "They are convinced that death is not an obliteration of consciousness anymore."

However, people's instincts of self-preservation remain, Moody said. He gave the example of a good friend who had an arterial arrest when lightning struck the telephone he was using.

The friend said, "I was praying for God to send me a sign that there was life after death. Now, I'm praying he won't send me another one!"

Moody said that people are reluctant to discuss their near-death experiences for fear that people will think they are crazy. "To hear them, all you need to do is express interest and be sympathetic."

He believes it is important to reassure people who've had these experiences that they are not alone.

Delay on Proposal to Freeze Mental Health Budget

By RICK SULLIVAN

Action on recommendations by a private association to freeze the $12 million budget of the San Mateo County Mental Health Department and to initiate a $100,000 consultant study to evaluate department programs was postponed recently by the Board of Supervisors.

The board agreed to forward the recommendation and an accompanying report to the county Mental Health Advisory Board for review. The board will discuss the report over the next several weeks and later suggest to the supervisors ways to improve the mental health delivery system.

The recommendations were based on findings of a four-month investigation conducted by a 40-person public affairs committee task force of the San Mateo County Mental Health Association.

The study group included representatives from service and health agencies, families of the mentally ill, tax relief organizations, health and consumer groups and some county employees.

Dr. W. Melvin Brown, association president, said Tuesday his group recognized the need for a better understanding of mental health programs offered in the county and initiated the study.

The task force report notes there is a concern that some mental patients are being over-observed, while others are not getting the help to which they are entitled.

The report additionally claims there is a lack of program coordination and that the Mental Health Division of the San Mateo County Health and Welfare Department has been getting federal and state funds for specific programs without knowing if they are actually needed.

"In some cases," the report states, "it's not the patient, but an entrenched bureaucracy which benefits."

It also charges, "Nowhere is there a clearly defined plan for mental health services which the layman can understand. Nowhere is there a well-developed program evaluation or an easily read and easily understood definition of the existing situation in the Mental Health Services Division."

For these reasons and others, the association recommends that the Board of Supervisors appropriate up to $100,000 for an outside consulting firm to evaluate and improve the mental health delivery system.

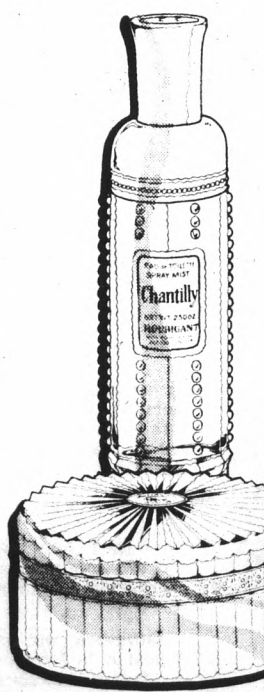

The report states that the task force could not get answers from some county staff on many questions

Misunderstood Yams

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks. Yams are delicious at every season of the year. Although we are used to thinking of yams only at Thanksgiving and other winter holiday meals, this versatile vegetable is now making appearances on menus the year round. People are discovering that yam side dishes are a great flavor companion to ham and other roasted meats.

When you are planning a dinner, consider this Orange Mallow Yam Bake. Fresh orange slices contribute a citrus contrast to the canned yams. And toasted miniature marshmallows top off the casserole with just the right amount of sweetness and an attractive finish.

Besides being delicious, Orange Mallow Yam Bake is so easy (it takes only minutes to make it oven-ready), you'll want to fix it often.

ORANGE MALLOW YAM BAKE
2 17-oz. cans yams, drained

2 oranges, peeled, sliced, cut in half
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows

Arrange yams and orange slices in a 1 1/2 quart shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with the fourth cup brown sugar. Bake at 350-degrees 20 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle with the cup and a half of marshmallows. Broil until lightly browned.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

I must pass along a new and different recipe for our old favorite, Brownies. I tried this recipe on the weekend and family and friends loved it.

CHEESECAKE BROWNIES

1 package family size brownie mix
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla

Prepare the brownie mix according to package directions. Cream the two tablespoons butter with the fourth cup sugar; beat in the one cup cottage cheese, one tablespoon cornstarch, one egg and one teaspoon vanilla. Spread half of brownie batter into greased 13x9-inch pan; cover with cheese mixture. Top with remaining brownie mixture. Bake in 350 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes.

Makes 4 dozen bars.

Teachers Perfect Craft

Creative Teaching
"Creative Teaching: The Basics and Beyond," is the focus of a five-day program for educators to be offered at the University of San Francisco from June 26 to July 1.

Boasting a faculty of national recognized educators, the program is co-sponsored by USF and "Learning Magazine" of Palo Alto. Seven other such programs will be held throughout the country this summer; this is the only one on the West Coast.

The concentrated course, which can be taken for three graduate or undergraduate units in education, is designed to offer useful classroom models for teaching the basic subjects within a humanistic, child-centered environment.

Among the guest lecturers will be Benjamin Spock, Ruth B. Love and Mario Fantini.

Tuition for the course is $235, which includes all materials and credit fees. Those interested in registering for the program should contact The Learning Institute, School of Education, University of San Francisco, San Francisco 94117.

Airport Recognized

The Aviation Safety Institute has selected San Francisco International Airport as one of only four airports in the United States to receive the institute's annual award for excellence in crash/fire/rescue and medical preparedness.

San Francisco International was judged by a committee of airline pilots and doctors to be "deserving of eminent recognition of outstanding efforts to prepare for any airport emergency."

Other airports singled out for special recognition were: Dallas/Fort Worth, John F. Kennedy and Stapleton International.

Gas Guzzling

California motorists used 821 million gallons of gasoline during February 1977 for a record high for that month. "Gasoline usage for February 1977 was 1.2 per cent higher than for February 1976. However, the amount of gasoline consumed for February was 6.9 per cent lower than for January 1977.

Four basic areas are covered: (1) child growth and development, cleanliness, (2) handling a small baby, diapering, bathing, (3) hazards, emergency and safety measures, and (4) food, recreation, discipline.

Call 589-5864 or 343-4561 for more information and to register. A certificate is awarded upon completion of this Red Cross Course.

Navy Destroyer

The USS Rogers, a Navy destroyer, will be open to the public on May 28 from 1 until 4 p.m. at San Francisco's Embarcadero.

The Rogers is a diesel powered destroyer of the Gearing Class and operates primarily in an anti-submarine role. Capable of speeds in excess of 34 knots, it is 390 feet long and displaces over 3,500 tons when fully loaded. The Rogers is homeported in Portland, Ore.

Rare Films

Movies at the Gallery presents two seldom seen films on May 8 at 7 p.m. "The Great Gabbo" (1929) features Erich Von Stroheim. He portrays a ventriloquist extraordinaire whose colossal ego brings him to the heights of fame and dashes him to the depths of madness. It is a peculiar plot woven with lavish musical numbers of the period.

"Lottery Bride" (1930) is a delightfully creaky musical set in the Yukon featuring brave Jeanette MacDonald, lavish sets, forgettable music and comic relief from Zazu Pitts and Joe E. Brown.

A donation of $2 for adults and $1 for children is requested. The next double feature will be "The Private Life of Henry VIII" and "Pygmalion" on Sunday, May 29 at 7 p.m.

Sunset Show

The third annual Sunset Camping and Outdoor Show will be held in the gardens and headquarters buildings of Sunset Magazines and Books here on May 8 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The show will include camping and fishing gear, recreational vehicles, boats, four-wheel-drive vehicles, backpacking equipment, and a wide range of demonstrations on camp cooking, fly tying and fly fishing, mountain climbing, kayaking, dog obedience and gold panning.

Last year more than 20,000 persons came to the one-day show to see the Sunset gardens in full bloom and exhibits set among the flowers, lawns, and tree-lined paths. Admission is free.

Diabetes Talk

Good Secretaries Almost Impossible To Find

By TERRY DAVENPORT
You hear it all the time: "A good secretary is hard to find." But as National Secretaries Week ends, secretaries are becoming a vanishing breed in San Mateo County.

Local employment agencies report they can't find enough skilled applicants for the job openings they're posting in record numbers. Among those openings, secretaries are by far in the greatest demand.

"I think the situation is, very frankly, unbelievable," said Dee Martin, manager of Skyline Personnel Agency in Millbrae. "Companies are offering very good salaries for what they're asking. One company gives a sixth grade math test for a secretarial position. We've had the job order for two weeks. No one can pass the test."

Hazel Nastrini, owner of South City Employment Agency in South San Francisco, agreed. "I have secretarial jobs at over $1,000 a month with the company paying the service charge and I can't find anyone," she said.

"I have to say that most of the youngsters that come out of high schools are not qualified for the job market. The training in our high schools is poor. They have no typing skills and no shorthand skills and 85 percent of the males and females are not qualified for the job market. What do they get? Twelve years of vacation, skillwise," Miss Nastrini said.

Jenny Myers of D&J Employment Agency, Redwood City, agreed, saying, "We have difficulty placing young applicants, particularly young girls who have no typing skills. They are people who need to get more secretarial skills."

Charles Thomas, owner of Contact Employment Agency in Redwood City, noted a particular demand for legal secretaries. He said shorthand is no longer a necessary skill for secretaries, but "typing is a real prerequisite for almost any job."

Bob Bruce, owner of Bruce Agency in San Mateo, said his company now specializes in placing people in middle and upper management jobs because his counselors have trouble finding people skilled for clerical and general office jobs.

Al Parker, president of American Personnel Agencies, Inc., San Mateo, said, "The problem isn't skills. It's a question of attitude — the desire to want to get a job and be employed."

Shirley Simcox, assistant manager of Serv-All Employment Agency in San Bruno, believes that some employers can't find clerical help because they're not paying salaries that keep up with inflation.

"We still have secretarial jobs coming in at $450 a month and if a person has a car to maintain, that's gross," she remarked, pointing out that the minimum wage of $2.50 per hour works out to a monthly salary of $433.33. "That really is not a living wage," she said.

According to Miss Simcox and others in the placement business, the problem centers around the small margin between unemployment benefits and beginning level job salaries.

"A lot of people tell us they can get more on unemployment, so why look for a job?" she said.

An unemployed individual who meets certain requirements may qualify for payments from $30 to $104 per week, based on the person's earnings in the highest quarter of the year prior to May 2.

To qualify for a claim award of $30 per week, that person would have had to earn at least $187.50 in the highest quarter. To receive a claim award of $104 a week, he would have had to earn at least $3,308 during the highest quarter.

The money comes from

Los Angeles and San Diego transit districts using lifts that have been delivered to them so far.

Mauro even recommended an outside engineering consultant be hired to study the lifts and requirements and make an independent report.

The district had hoped to get at least some of the buses in service by next year, but the "old junk" in Mauro's words, it now operates.

The AM General bid, the only one received, was some $522,000 over estimate, but with 80 per cent of the cost being paid by federal Transportation and Development Act money and the rest from reserves and the farebox, the district finance committee has said it can be done and recommended it.

In other business Wednesday the board:

- Approved a 1977-78 fiscal budget of $12,570,000, which includes a large increase in service but with no more staff, no property tax subsidy levy and no eating into the operating reserve.
- Learned that its planned takeover of Greyhound Lines commute service in the county probably will be delayed at least until late June because the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission unexpectedly delayed a decision Tuesday on use of Market Street bus stops by SamTrans.

The money comes from employers who pay into an unemployment insurance fund.

"In order to collect unemployment insurance, a person has to have been totally or partially employed, has to have had wages in a specific base period, has to be able and available for work, has to be actively seeking work, and then there are conditions that affect eligibility," explained Betty Rogers, manager of the South San Francisco office of the State Department of Employment Development.

A person may not qualify for unemployment if he was discharged from his last job for misconduct, if he left work because of a trade dispute, if he refused to take suitable work or if he made false statements or withheld information, she said.

Strong Demand For Secretaries

A report just released by the Employment Development Department of Northern California forecasts a very strong demand for skilled secretaries and stenographers in San Mateo County during the next few months.

The report gives details on the expected labor demand and supply for various occupations which are identified by Dictionary of Occupational Titles codes.

Here's what the San Mateo County job picture looks like through June:

STRONG DEMAND — There will be a great demand for secretaries, stenographers, clerks, general office workers, barbers, cosmetologists and major household appliance repairers.

CONSIDERABLE DEMAND — Employers will continue to seek programmers, Registered Nurses, medical transcribers, bookkeepers (full-charge), bank tellers, waiters and waitresses, cooks, kitchen helpers, home attendants, home service workers, machinists, dental technicians, television and radio repairers and electronics mechanics.

Suit Threatened By Handicapped

An order for 74 new buses was approved by the San Mateo County Transit District board of directors Wednesday night, but the district may end up defending the purchase in court from an attack by organizations of handicapped persons.

James Donald, deputy director of the state Department of Rehabilitation, speaking from his motorized wheelchair, told the board after its vote that the state will "do whatever needs to be done to make sure all buses are fully accessible."

Donald and Mrs. Jan Brown, representing the California Association of Physically Handicapped

San Mateo County chapter, had complained about the lack of powered wheelchair lifts on the new buses. The district had planned to order four of the new vehicles with them for test purposes, and Wednesday acceded to staff and citizens advisory committee recommendations for 25.

But the handicapped insisted that all buses be so fitted. Mrs. Brown also threatened a suit. "It's not in the public interest for us to seek relief in the courts," she said, but implied that's where they would go if necessary.

Donald said after the meeting that should his agency go to court, the state attorney general's office probably would file in San Mateo County Superior Court within the next two weeks. The first move would be to seek an injunction preventing awarding of the $6,324,800 contract to AM General Corp. for the buses on grounds that lack of lifts on all vehicles violates state policy of full accessibility for handicapped and mobility impaired persons.

The action would be filed on behalf of Department of Rehabilitation Director Edward Roberts, a former Burlingame resident, himself confined to a wheelchair.

District Counsel Dave Miller said the notification of award of the contract would be made to AM General soon, but didn't specify when.

Donald said the suit might follow the contract award.

The move would be in line with department policy of promoting strong access laws for handicapped to public facilities, Donald said, "and the most basic of all is transportation. We can't have a person to be a lawyer but if he can't get to a job it's worthless."

But the SamTrans board and staff perceived the issue for them to be one of cost, with the factory-built lifts adding an estimated $9,000-plus to the cost of each of the 35- and 40-foot buses.

District General Manager John T. Mauro, Maintenance Director Harvey Ferman and Transit Operations Director Carle Salley argued fervently against more than 25 lifts against present technology hasn't made them reliable enough. They disagreed with assertions by the spokesmen for the handicapped that such lifts are available and dependable, saying their own visits to factories in San Leandro and San Diego had shown them to be either still in testing stages or behind in production for other transit districts.

Ferman also offered a list of mechanical problems encountered by the Los Angeles and San Diego transit districts using lifts that have been delivered to them so far.

Mauro even recommended an outside engineering consultant be hired to study the lifts and requirements and make an independent report.

The district had hoped to get at least some of the buses in service by next year, but the "old junk" in Mauro's words, it now operates.

Unusual Pardon In Offing

San Mateo County officials today are responsible for action which should pave the way for the release of a man who has served 30 months in prison for a murder he never committed.

The unusual legal case involves Luigi Aranda, who was cleared last month of a murder which he had been convicted of when the San Francisco District Attorney's Office announced that it had obtained new evidence.

Killed was Hell's Angel Jesse Galvin.

The state law, however, prohibited Gov. Brown from honoring a request for a full pardon because a prisoner who has a prior felony conviction.

Aranda had been convicted in San Mateo County nearly 10 years ago of a felonious bad check charge.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Alan W. Haverly Wednesday reduced the charge to a misdemeanor.

Without Judge Haverly's action, Aranda would have had to stay in prison until the state Supreme Court could review his case, even though the San Francisco District Attorney's Office has "vindicated him."

Authorities said they thought the governor would soon act on a request for a pardon — one which was impossible until Wednesday.

raised during the investigation, such as those concerning allocation of available resources and coordination of the "myriad of fragmented programs."

The independent study, the task force suggests, should determine the patient population of the county and needs of that population, the effectiveness of each mental health program and how the effectiveness of the programs are measured, and the ratio of administrative services to direct patient services.

Board Chairman John Ward reacted indignantly to the suggestion that $100,000 be spent to evaluate the mental health programs.

"If our staff ... can't answer most of the questions raised in this report then I have some very serious concerns. I do feel we should be able to handle this in-house," he said.

Dr. Howard Gurevitz, assistant director of the County Health and Welfare Department, replied that some of the questions could be handled by the department. But, he added, if the board chose to get an outside opinion on the effectiveness of the mental health programs it could petition the state for aid.

Gurevitz said the state does conduct reviews of local mental health programs.

The assistant director told the board that he disagrees with some specifics included in the report.

"We don't agree that programs are started and stopped on a whim (which the report charges) and we don't believe that federal and state funds are spent to support the bureaucracy," he stated.

"We do agree," he added, "that there is a problem in trying to understand some program goals and objectives, funding and participation. There is a need to improve program interpretation."

County Manager David L. Nichols reminded the board that state legislation passed several years ago charged counties with implementing mental health programs to replace those administered in the past by the state. He said the law required that mental health advisory boards be established in each community.

"The system has changed dramatically so there has been a great deal of concern," Nichols said.

Phoebe Rowles, chairperson of the San Mateo County Mental Health Advisory Board, said her group would welcome a review of the association report.

She said some members of the committee are also members of the association and are therefore familiar with the report. But, she added, the committee has not formally reviewed it.

Mrs. Rowles commended the work of the association, but she reminded supervisors that the committee is a citizens group which was created to review the mental health programs and services.

Supervisors unanimously agreed that the advisory board should study the report over the next four weeks. Brown said he had no objection to referring the report to the board, but he stated he would object to a state evaluation of the county mental health programs.

"We think that an evaluation should be done by local consultants," Brown said.

Colma Approves Controversial K-Mart Property Zone Change

Wednesday, May 4, 1977

Colma's City Council Wednesday approved a controversial zoning change to allow construction of a K-Mart store on El Camino Real.

The council split 3-2 on the decision, with Mayor Pro Tem Paul Howe and Councilman Ray Ottoboni voting against the amendment to the city's general plan and change in the zoning map.

Mayor Eugene Daneluz provided the surprise swing vote in favor of the rezoning.

During the meeting, all five councilmen were silent on the proposal, preferring not to discuss their opinions on the matter, even when City Attorney Robert Cornell suggested that it might be an appropriate time to do so.

The request by Michigan developer E.N. Maisel and Associates to rezone 10 acres now occupied by Pacific Nurseries has been one of the main topics of discussion in the city since the K-Mart proposal surfaced last fall.

Several city residents buzzed angrily in the audience when the affirmative vote was taken, though there was little opposition expressed at the public hearing two weeks ago.

The main spokesman against the rezoning, San Francisco attorney James Paul Green, said after the meeting that a petition by 25 per cent of the small city's voters could force the council's rezoning decision to a citywide vote.

Green, who has refused throughout the matter to name his client opposing the K-Mart development, said he was unsure whether he would file suit against the decision, as he had threatened several times over the past few months.

Green also charged that following the April 13 public hearing, someone stole his briefcase in an effort to find out who he represents. The briefcase was returned yesterday, with some cash missing, he said. He has requested a police investigation of the matter.

The city attorney said the developers still must obtain a use permit for the project, submitting adequate landscaping and traffic coordination plans to the city.

The council, however, clearly has indicated its initial approval of the rezoning through its Environmental Impact Report (EIR) findings.

In the EIR checklist provided by the city attorney, the council agreed that the 10-acre site would be used best in "some form of commercial development" because of its proximity to other business activity on Serramonte.

The Council split its decision on the EIR statement that "The projected revenue-producing benefit of the project outweighs the negative environmental impacts of the project and justifies the requested planning and zoning changes."

Other disagreement in the EIR statements occurred over the amount of traffic and flooding problems the council foresees.

Cornell recommended that the council employ a traffic consultant to weigh the impact at the site and make further recommendations.

The developer argued that the proposed construction would not destroy the "dignity of Colma" by conflicting with its numerous cemetery businesses located on El Camino Real.

The developer promised to screen the $2.5 million store and 600-car parking lot with landscaping. The store will include touches of Colma's mission-style architecture, he said.

A spokeswoman for E.N. Maisel and Associates said the developer hopes to get construction underway by summer and the complex finished by next spring.

Artist New Chairman Of County Arts Council

Artist Rose Roskin has replaced Dick Hankins as chairman of the San Mateo County Arts Council Board of Trustees, it was announced today.

Mrs. Roskin served as vice-chairman under Hankins and has been an active member of the board since its inception. Hankins, an airlines vice-president in this area, has accepted a position with Texas International Airlines in Houston. He leaves May 12.

Hankins thanked directors and staff at a recent meeting for their assistance during his term of office that began last September.

"I see tremendous things in store for the San Mateo Arts Council in the future," he said.

In other board action, Warren Gabrielli of Daly

City, secretary, was named vice-chairman to replace Mrs. Roskin, and director Nancy Jalonen of San Mateo, KCSM-TV educational television producer, was elected secretary of the board.

H.J. Dangerfield of Foster City, regional vice-president of the Glendale Federal Savings and Loan Association, remains as treasurer.

Mrs. Roskin, the first woman to head the policymaking, unpaid panel, said one of her first actions will be to find a replacement on the board for Hankins, and for Ray Lorenzato.

IAMAW Wins United Election

The National Mediation Board announced in Washington Thursday at 4 p.m. (Eastern Time) that a nationwide union jurisdictional election of United Airlines workers has been decided in favor of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

John A. Kensinger of San Mateo, president of IAMAW Lodge 1781, reported that 4,915 United mechanics and related workers had cast ballots in favor of representation by IAMAW. Another 3,861 employees voted for the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association. Kensinger said he was told by the NMB.

The dispute, which has been going on for over a year, should now be settled, according to union members.

"Now we can get on with deregulation," said one. Kensinger said the result of the nationwide election is that all mechanics, inspectors, fuelers, ground and aircraft simulator technicians, utility workers, cabin service employees, seamen and apprentices will remain members of IAMAW.

The union also covers other United employees, including dispatchers, ramp and stores people and others, who were not involved in the election.

Runoff Problem Reviewed

For 90 minutes Thursday night, members of the San Mateo County Regional Planning Commission took part in a discussion of storm water runoff.

"What is the quality of San Mateo County surface runoff, and what do we do about it?" asked Geri Farnham. She's the county coordinator for the federally funded multimillion-dollar study to determine causes and controls for water pollution. The program is generally referred to as "208."

The surface runoff study is one of seven parts of the "208 study," she explained. A slide show then presented the federal view of water pollution resulting from storm drains clogged with rubbish, polluted with used motor oil and other materials.

Miss Farnham then asked the city and county elected and appointed officials who are part of the Regional Planning Committee to take part in a "brainstorming" session to discuss solutions to the problems of water pollution caused by runoff.

Admittedly this has been a bad year for sampling bay and ocean waters to prove that pollution results from storms, she said, but indications are that pollution is carried into rivers, lakes and bays by storm water runoff.

Among the suggestions provided by the audience of nearly 30 persons were increased recycling, improved gardening techniques, public education to convince people they should not pour motor oil down storm drains, more frequent garden rubbish pickup and more frequent street sweeping.

The RPC also heard several subcommittee reports.

Up-to-date Reports On Camping Offered

Families planning their camping vacations this summer should first check and see if the campground has been adversely affected by the drought, Assemblyman Papan (D-San Mateo County) cautioned this week.

"The drought has played havoc with many parks in California," said Assemblyman Papan. "Some lakes and streams will be dry, preventing fishing and boating, and some campgrounds will be closed altogether because of extreme fire danger."

"The Drought Information Center in Sacramento has published an up-to-date recreation report on most state and national campgrounds showing the conditions at the sites," Papan said. "It will be updated frequently throughout the long, dry summer."

"The report is available in my district office at 345-E Serramonte Plaza, Daly City. I invite local residents to come in and pick up a copy, or they may call my office (756-6400) and have a copy mailed to them. It just might make the difference between a memorable vacation and a disappointing holiday," Papan said.

Gardener's Checklist

1. Deep watering encourages healthy deep rooting. After thoroughly watering, dig down and see how far down the water actually penetrated.
2. You can save on your air conditioning bill by reducing the summer temperature of your house with properly placed plantings. Ask your nurseryman about planting deciduous shade trees.
3. Don't remove the leaves of flowering bulbs such as daffodils and tulips until they die back naturally. The green leaves are providing food to the bulb for next spring's flower show.
4. Don't forget to thin vegetable garden seedlings early. Provide plenty of growing space between the young plants as soon as they sprout their first true leaves.

If Bowie Kuhn didn't convince the Finley haters that he's out to get Charley with that cancellation of the Vida Blue trade with Texas which would have brought Finley six players AND $2.5 million and certainly wouldn't have broken up the A's, I don't know what will.

That was pure vindictiveness, and now the owners who stood up for Kuhn in court during the trial in which Finley attempted to overturn the Kuhn decision of last summer to prevent Charley from selling Blue, Joe Rudi, et al, may be beginning to see the light. They may be beginning to realize that in turning over to Kuhn power that even Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis never had, they have created a monster who will eventually hurt all of them, right along with Finley.

Blue could have brought owner Brad Corbett and his Rangers a pennant. But Kuhn prevented it, and Corbett's sore, and rightly so. There is certainly nothing unprecedented in a team which is down and attempting to build trading off a star who could bring another team a quick pennant in exchange for a gaggle of players.

Irony is replete in the situation, and major league baseball owners deserve both Finley (who they courted madly to begin with) and Kuhn.

CANDY CUMMINGS, the ancient pitcher who, according to standard baseball lore "invented" the curve ball, is going to have to stand aside and leave at least half a space on his pedestal, because it seems that the curve ball has been re-invented.

According to a recent UPI report out of Concord, N.H., a man who runs a resort hotel and his son, a former college third baseman, have invented something called a "major league breaking ball" which, when thrown normally, curves automatically.

Nelson Newcomb, 52, predicts that his invention will have a great impact on baseball.

The secret to his invention lies in the fact that his "ball" is not really a ball at all, because it is not completely round, but has 10 per cent shaved off its top, making one end slightly flat.

IT DOES WEIGH the same as a regulation baseball (five ounces), and will sell for about the normal baseball price ($24 a dozen, $3.50 retail).

Newcomb and his son, Corky, invented the ball as an aid to hitters. If a person can throw a ball at all, the Newcomb ball, when thrown, will break "right off a table."

Made of polyurethane, the ball is designed so that it breaks the opposite way from the flat side. To throw a screwball, the "pitcher" places the flat end on the opposite side as one would throw a normal curve. For a "riser," the ball is thrown flat end down. For a sinker, it's tossed flat end facing up, with a small sidearm twist.

Newcomb claims that the ball's chief feature is that batters can now hit curves in batting practice because anyone can pitch them. Batting practice pitchers, he reminds, are usually coaches or players who either can't throw curves at all, throw them so poorly they're of no help to the batter, or who don't want to throw them for fear of incurring an arm injury.

Newcomb further claims that the round part of the ball will always hit the bat, resulting in a "normal fly ball 98 per cent of the time."

If nothing else, the ball could provide that fantasy that all backyard pitchers have: being able to throw a major league curve at the imaginary Babe Ruth, leveling his bat at you from beneath a clothes line.

Oh, Nelson Newcomb, where were you when I needed you 30 years ago?

BASEBALL MISCELLANY: It's a very strange thing about the Giants. They've had something better than a 50 per cent turnover in personnel, but they still can't advance runners, or bring them in from scoring position. Could they be teaching that in the farm system?

Don't know whether we're deprived or lucky, but only two teams in the major leagues televise fewer games than the Giants 20. That would be Seattle in the AL (17) and San Diego in the NL (14). Montreal ties the Giants.

Champion televiewer in the big leagues is the White Sox, which shows 125 games.

BASKETBALL MISCELLANY: If you don't think the defunct ABA has had a positive effect on the NBA, you don't think. At least, not according to the "Sporting News."

The old Bible of baseball recently announced its All-Star NBA team, and five of the 11 players named to the first two strings are former ABA players.

Philadelphia's Julius Irving and George McGinnis, of course, were named to the first team (McGinnis, it must be noted, is in his second year in the NBA), while Maurice Lucas of Portland, David Thompson of Denver and Billy Knight of Indiana were named to the second squad.

LOCAL NOTES: John Patrick Reger, the tall, handsome young man who wowed the Miss Pacifica Scholarship Pageant audience as the pageant's official singer, is the same John Reger who played basketball for Stanford in the early '70s on a scholarship out of Minnesota until a back injury in his sophomore year ended his athletic career.

"I was going to be a big scorer," says Reger, now able to laugh about it. "I had all of Pistol Pete Maravich's moves."

So Reger, brooding, took a trip to Europe, stayed for a while in Florence, Italy ("The most beautiful city in the world"), and somehow its dramatic presence convinced him that he could make it in a form of show business other than sports.

He is now one of the hardest working non-stars on the West Coast, what with his modeling ("I can get a lot of jobs because I'm tall — so many models are little guys — and because I can pass for either 20 years old, or 28, which is what I am."), dancing and singing.

If you're wondering who was involved in the trade between Kansas City and Milwaukee which saw Pacifica's Bob McClure move from the Royals to the Brewers, as mentioned here recently, it completed an earlier deal which had sent Milwaukee catcher Darrell Porter and pitcher Jim Colborn to KC for outfielders Jamie Quick and Jim Wohlford.

TRIVIA OF THE WEEK: Everybody knows that Ted Williams is the last major leaguer to hit over .400. But he was in the American League. Ted hit .406 in 1941. Now, who was the last NATIONAL LEAGUER to hit over .400? It was Billy Terry, who hit .401 in 1930.

So you think Jackie Robinson was the first Negro major leaguer? Not according to Robert W. Peterson, in his excellent history of black baseball, "Only the Ball was White." He says that the first Negro big leaguer was a catcher named Moses Fleetwood Walker, who was catching for Toledo in the Northwestern League when it entered the American Association in 1884, when the AA, though less prestigious than the National League, was nonetheless recognized as a major league.

SINGLES CHAMPION

Glenn Dean of Jefferson High put everything he had into this shot in match against South San Francisco's Brian Chun Friday. Dean beat Chun 4-6, 7-6, (5-1), 1-1 when Chun defaulted because of leg cramps, thereby winning the NPL singles title. (See story on Page 8).

Coast Conference

Trojans Champs

By FRED BAER
Times Correspondent

The awesome spring strength of Skyline College turned back late-blossoming Monterey Peninsula's field and distance onslaught as the Trojans repeated as Coast Conference track and field champions Saturday.

Host Skyline tallied 199 points to 158 for the Lobos, while Hartnell slipped to third with 108-lowest finish for the Panthers in a decade. Menlo was fifth with 18. Even though Skyline has never lost a dual meet in five seasons in the Coast Conference, it wasn't until 1976 that the Trojans could end Hartnell's nine-year hold on the league title.

Skyline will next seek the California Small Conference Invitational crown Friday in Porterville before joining College of San Mateo Saturday for action at Fresno's West Coast Relays. Top two finishers in each event Saturday qualified for the Porterville affair and the Trojans will have nine athletes in 16 spots on Friday, including both relays.

Skyline speedsters Tony Hicks and Alvin Diles came back from minor leg injuries to win two events apiece Saturday.

day and Hicks also chased teammate Raphael Smith to the wire in the 110 high hurdles, both clocking 14.5.

But the mark of the meet was a 9:18.4 steeplechase triumph by Trojan Jim Martinelli, edging the number two time in the state posted Friday night by CSM's Dave Hull (9:18.8) in the Golden Gate Conference finals. Porterville's Joaquin Leano from Mexico (9:02.2) is the state and national leader. Skyline's Bill Amable moved up to number six in Northern California with his third place 9:26.6.

A 1-2-3 sweep of the 200 by Diles (22.2), Robert Clay and Mitchell Lockett over MPC's Percy Davis was the caper, after Monterey lost its other entrant, Ben Garner, on a false start. Ellis Tatum took fifth for Skyline in 23.2, almost catching Davis (23.3). MPC also dropped the baton in both relays.

Diles and Clay also finished in the same order in a Skyline track record 48.5 400. NorCal intermediate hurdle leader Hicks (51.7) and Smith (52.6) loafed to a near deadheat in 55.0 and 55.2, respectively, holding hands across the finish.

Ram Diver Takes Fifth

Westmoor High diver Mark Scalia placed fifth in the Region I diving meet Saturday at Serra High.

Scalia, the North Peninsula League champ, qualified for the CCS meet, as did Neil Lundy of Terra Nova who was sixth.

SSF Nine Stops Tigers Camino Clinches a Tie

By JOHN MURPHY
Times Correspondent
South San Francisco High pitcher Matt Allio got by with a little help from his friend Friday at Orange Park.

Allio turned in a superlative performance, holding powerful Terra Nova in check for six innings. However, he ran into trouble in the seventh and gave way to super-reliever Jim Dunn. Dunn entered the contest with runners on first and second with one out and SSF leading 1-0. TN's Rainer Binsfield worked Dunn to a 3-2 count before striking out on a sharp breaking ball. Dunn then retired Mike Mooney on a shot to third base to end the threat.

Terra Nova's loss hands El Camino (a 4-1 winner over Westmoor) at least a tie for the North Peninsula League round robin championship. Camino would have to drop two straight while Terra Nova wins its final four for a tie to occur.

In another NPL contest Oceana dropped last place Serramonte, 6-1.

Allio, who recorded the win, also drove in the only run of the ball game. His line shot into left-center in the fifth inning plated Tiger Delacruz.

El Camino's John Donalaya allowed only three hits while striking out 12 and won the game in the fifth with a three-run homer.

Oceana only had four hits in its win over Serramonte but three of those were for extra bases. Ron Jodsaas struck the big blow for the Sharks with a bases-loaded triple in the fifth.

Serramonte Coach Bill Barnes was forced to relieve his starter after his second trip to the mound in the fifth (also his second trip in the game). Barnes contended that high school rules allowed three trips before a forced substitution, and protested the game.

Jeff Nets Take Finals

It was definitely a Jefferson High day in the North Peninsula League tennis finals Friday at Orange Park in South San Francisco.

The Indians, just one of three teams to tie for the NPL round robin title, swept both the singles and doubles titles.

Glenn Dean won the singles crown over Brian Chun of South City when Chun was forced to default in the third set because of leg cramps. It had been a superb match up to that point. The match was tied at 4-6, 7-6 (5-1), 1-1, when Chun defaulted.

Dean's brother Gil teamed up with Mike Carr to take the doubles crown over Terra Nova's Darryl McClelland and Don Featherstone 1-6, 6-1, 6-1.

A three-way playoff will begin next week to determine the NPL team titlist.

Singles Finals: Dean (J) d. Chun (SSF) 4-6, 7-6, 1-1 default; Third Place: Chun (SM) d. Richmond (W) 6-2, 6-2; Semis: Dean d. Richmond 6-2, 6-9; Chun d. Chu 6-1, 6-1.
Doubles Finals: Dean-Carr (J) d. McClelland-Featherstone (TN) 1-6, 6-1, 6-1; Third Place: Cimet-Dresser (SSF) d. Javier-Kohler (EC) 6-2, 6-3; Semis: Featherstone-McClelland d. Cimet-Dresser 6-4, 1-6, 6-1; Dean-Carr d. Kohler-Javier 6-1, 6-4.

Rams, TN Tie For Swim Title

Westmoor High's swim team won the North Peninsula Finals Friday at Jefferson to end up tied with Terra Nova for the NPL championship.

The Rams won the finals with 95 1/2 points. Terra Nova was second with 81. Team points are awarded 3-2-1 in the finals and one for each league win. TN had beaten Westmoor in a dual meet, so both ended up with seven points.

Westmoor won just three events, but its overall depth won the meet. Tom Wischep took the back, Mike Collett the breast and the Rams won the medley relay.

Terra Nova accounted for the only NPL record, a 3:37.3 in the 400 free relay, snapping their old mark of 3:42.0 set in 1974. Jay Bontrager and Pete Kern were double winners for TN. Bontrager copped the 200 and 100 frees, and Kern the IM and fly.

Team Scores: Westmoor 95 1/2, Terra Nova 81, South City 49, El Camino 23 1/2, Jefferson 11, Oceana 2.

MOTHER'S DAY DINING GUIDE

BRIGHT LIGHTS
BY
LLOYD JOHNSON

"Mom's The Word" Says Murray Lehr

"Mom's The Word" at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant in San Francisco, where Head Gardener MURRAY LEHR is getting a flock of reservations for Mother's Day brunch and dinner among the flowers, plants and towering banana palm trees. Murray just doubled the size of his garden with a beautifully terraced new addition, so seating on Mother's Day will be much faster. Tony Cline, former Oakland Raider who is now a San Francisco 49er, and party were recent dinner guests at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S. It is a tradition to entertain mothers and family at this superb Redwood City restaurant on Mother's Day. New treat for steak lovers at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, Taylor Street entrance, is the "Feather Bone Steak," a lean, aged New York broiled with the bone in for peak tenderness and flavor. Hard work and devotion to one's profession is the pledge at VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEA-FOOD restaurant, and the LICATA family is putting it to work. Vince's restaurant crew performs like a well-tuned machine, with each member ready to serve. As is the tradition each Mother's Day, the restaurant will not be open Sunday, May 8.

"What a Way To go" The Grand Prix

NICK GUST, the silver-haired restaurant tycoon of Pacifica (NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES), has to be the recipient of one of the most outstanding all-expense paid guest invitations this scribe has yet to ink. Namely, the Loews Hotel in Monte Carlo has invited Nick and his lovely wife, LORRAINE, to the 35th running of the Gran Prix, with private jet transportation leaving May 15. Stop-overs in New York and way points, then back home May 24. The list of exciting places to visit would be a once-in-a-lifetime for the most seasoned traveler. Being a guest for such an occasion couldn't happen to a more deserving couple. What a way to go! The AIRPORT MARINA HOTEL expects another record-breaking crowd on Mother's Day in Shipwreck Kelly's dining room. Turkey, ham and roast beef, all carved to order, will highlight the Champagne Buffet, which will begin service at 9:30 a.m. The DEL POMPADOURS bring their 50's rock 'n' roll revival music to the BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno this Sunday. You don't need white socks and Penny Loafers to get in, but you might feel strange if you don't at least tap your feet to the music. OLIVER'S restaurant in South San Francisco will be open Mother's Day, says co-owner LEO CARDOSI. Chef Julius Rische is planning a special menu.

Martinelli's Open 3 P.M. Mother's Day

MARTINELLI'S STEAK PIT in Millbrae will have an early 3 p.m. opening on Mother's Day. Owner TOM BOCCI says there will be a special menu for the occasion. Reservations will be accepted. A rousing brand of country and western music by THE INMATES can be enjoyed on weekends at THE MESA in downtown San Bruno. Judging from the crowds, you can be sure that club co-owner TOM MORGAN has signed the group to a lengthy stint. You can choose from 15 small and large combination plates at LA PINATA in Burlingame. However, when you consider you also get a choice of beef, chicken or cheese with any enchilada, the number of selections total 39. A Mother's Day Champagne Brunch for the whole family will be featured at the RODEWAY INN, South San Francisco. Crepes, Eggs Florentine, Sirloin Tips, assorted fruits and cheeses are a few of the good things to expect. Complimentary corsage for all mothers. New York Steak served "South American style" is one of the specialties served at ROMANO'S in Rockaway Beach. "SAS" means the steak is served on a bed of shredded lettuce, potatoes, sliced tomatoes, then sauteed onions on top. GULLIVER'S, an 18th century English Pub in Burlingame serving award-winning cuisine, will be open at 1 p.m. on Mother's Day. Prime Ribs of Beef as you like it with all the dinner extras will be featured. A Mother's Day Special that is sure to please Dad, too, will be served at YOLANDA'S in South San Francisco. All complete dinners will be $4.95, except Mother's dinner will be $3.75. Five entrees from which to choose. Also a complimentary glass of wine.
